Thank You

Your generous donations have been an encouragement this last year with the attendance down due to the virus restrictions. We do appreciate your support for the museum and know that this endeavor would not be possible without the community support that we have received this year and throughout the years of providing the public with access to northern Colorado farming history.

Intern

Dr. Adam Thomas, who is a History Professor at CSU and also on our Board, has been working with the CSU Public Lands History Center and the CSU Extension Service to provide us with an intern for the summer. It is actually working out for us to have two interns, one with the Public Lands History Center and one with the Extension Service. They will be doing a site management plan for us. As family members are growing older, the future of the museum is becoming a concern. This plan will give us an idea of the feasibility of keeping the museum running in the future and a plan of how that could be done. We are happy to announce that these interns will be providing this plan for us this summer and we look forward to working with them. We also thank the Extension Service and Public Lands History Center for providing these interns. There will be more information on this project in our summer newsletter.

Spring on the Farm

We are planning our "Spring on the Farm" event on May 8, from 10 to 3. The baby animals will be the main attraction. Molly and Ned, our two baby calves, have arrived and other animals will be coming soon.

We are also including over 30 local artisans and vendors for the event, so come and plan to do your Mothers Day shopping with them. We will be giving out free seed planting kits.
